

The National Technology Innovation Awards are back and better than ever. This year we're welcoming a new partner, HP Canada, to our dynamic team. Come celebrate with educators from across the country in the not-to-be-missed event of the year.

Honouring innovative educators to encourage innovative practices.

It's a chance for us, as educators, to encourage innovation, share best practices, and recognize the achievements of our colleagues. You and your prospective participants will come away inspired to adopt new uses of technology into your own teaching environments.

Nominating educators who inspire through innovation.

We're soliciting nominations from across the country. Help set the standard for our educational system by encouraging your stakeholders to nominate those individuals or teams whom they believe have made a difference through Information and Communication Technologies. Their nominees could win a prize and present their ideas to a national audience. All educators in publicly funded elementary schools, secondary schools, colleges and universities are eligible.

We look forward to seeing you again this year. All nominations should be submitted to www.thelearningpartnership.ca/innovation.htm by March 2, 2009.
